23rd Annual Winter Gardening Seminar at Warriors' Path State Park — Native Ferns in the Landscape:

Friday: 7:00 p.m. or Saturday: 10:00 a.m. Free, but pre-registration is required. Learn methods and techniques for environmentally friendly gardening using native ferns. For further information, check the Tennessee state park website (<http://www.state.tn.us/environment/parks/WarriorsPath/pdf/WinterBrochure.pdf>) or contact Marty Silver, Park Naturalist, at (423) 239-6786 or e-mail: Marty.Silver@tn.gov.

Seed Swap

Master Gardeners have an opportunity to earn ACT hours starting with the first Wednesday in January. We will help host and direct a Seed Swap. We will meet at the Blountville Library for two hours, 4:00-6:00, the first Wednesday of each month. Master Gardeners will be asked to simply answer questions. Great place to earn hours, sitting in a chair inside! This winter-long program will be open to everyone. For more info, contact B. Anderson at netmga2009@yahoo.com.

February Events:

Thursday, February 2 — 7:00 p.m.

Herb Saplings Meeting

Exchange Place, 4812 Orebank Road, Kingsport. Jamie Hermann will lead the International Herb of the Year Discussion: "Rose, An Herb to Remember." Please bring an herbal snack to share if you can.

Thank You

On behalf of all SAPS members, your new editor extends sincere gratitude and appreciation to Laurie Feit for the many years she spent as editor of The Wheelbarrow. We all appreciate the work she put into this effort and now wish her the best as she finally gets to relax and read The Wheelbarrow, rather than write it! Enjoy your free time, Laurie!

Recommended Reading by SAPS President, Hugh Conlon

If you have not seen the new (their first) book by the Blount County, Tennessee Master Gardeners, get yourself a copy of Right Here! Plants That Thrive in East Tennessee. It is now available for a $10 donation. You can pick up a copy at Lamar Amburn Produce, Honey Rock Herb Farm in Louisville, Trillium Cove Home and Garden in Townsend, Out of Eden, Horn of Plenty, Westside Nurseries, Meadow View Garden Center in Lenior City and Blount County Extension Office on Court Street in Maryville. Call the Extension Office at 865-982-6430 for more information.
